

95-0338

Utilization: in power engineering for wind-to-electrical energy conversion.

The summary: at the wind presence the rotation from the impeller is transmitted through the torsion shaft to the step - up gear driven shaft and further through the conic rolls to the plane roller satellite gear.

The satellite precession motion by means of the crank is conversed into rotary motion of the generator shaft.