

94-0293

The self-cleaning filter including the body of the filter having, at least, inlet opening for untreated liquid and outlet opening for treated liquid, the filter medium placed between the inlet opening for untreated liquid and outlet opening for treated liquid.

At least, one sprayer is placed in immediate proximity to the filter medium and is connected, at least, to two different pressure sources, one of these pressures is higher than the pressure predominant in the filter and the other pressure is lower than that predominant in this filter. It is also provided the device to create the relative movement between the filter medium and, at least one sprayer as to have the filter medium surface area considerable part, embraced by this sprayer.