

95-0172

The invention relates to highly distereoselective processes for production of optically active cis-nucleosides, nucleoside analogues and derivatives and intermediates useful in those processes.

The technical result consists in increasing the yield of highly pure and optically active cisnucleosides.

Claims: 34