

96-0035

The invention relates to the medicine and veterinary, and particularly, to the methods for rotavirus identification.

The method foresees the staphylococcus sensibilization of the reagent containing the protein A with specific immunoglobulins, the sensibilization reaction is reproduced 3-5 times during 5-6 hours.

The technical result consists in the increasing of the specific immunoglobulin that is conjunctivated in the reagent.