

96-0165

The invention relates to the tobacco industry and, in particular, to the leave tobacco treatment after harvesting and can be used in the tobacco manufactory for the production of the fermentated raw tobacco, suitable for smoke products manufacturing.

The technical result of the invention consists in the transport operations optimization, full leave tobacco treatment in the manufacturing enterprises, including the fermentation and raw tobacco losses increasing.