

96-0242

The invention relates to plants protection and may be used for a biological control of plants diseases.

Summary of the invention consists in using the genus Nectria strains for control of the plants fungal infections. The invention relates also to the compositions, containing strains of genus Nectria, use thereof for biological control of plants diseases and to the method for selection of the effective microorganisms for control of the microorganisms, isolated from soil.