

97-0080

The invention relates to agents for plants growing regulation and development and may be used in the agriculture, namely, in viticulture.

The agent for extra-root vine feeding according to the invention consists of the wine distillary waste and water at the further components ratio, in the volume percents:

wine distillary waste 25...50

water the rest.

The technical result of the invention consists in the optimal vine providing with macro- and microelements, aminoacids, proteins, vitamins and organic acids.

Claims: 1