

97-0137

The invention relates to the plants growing field, namely, to the plants protection and may be used for modification of cultivated plants genotypes.

The summary of the invention consists in the use of 0,002 - 0,004% dicaris water solution as antimutagenous agent for posttreatment of maize seeds before sawing.

The technical result of the invention consists in the large chromosome abberation frequance decrease and small chromosome abberation frequence increase.

Claims: 1