

98-0038

The invention relates to medicine, particularly, to surgery dermatoplasty.

The method comprises taking a transplant, comprising all dermal strata, reducing thereof to fragments up to 0,01...0,03 mm, mixing thereof with an antiseptic solution and deposition of the disperse transplant on the wound by spraying.

The technical result consists in the simultaneous growing of all the skin elements, forming a new valuable dermal integument.

Claims: 1