

98-0063

The invention relates to the sportive table games, particularly, to the chess or draughts games.

Summary of the invention consists in, that the table for laying chess or draught contains a plate, game boards and additionally - a rotative plate mounted on the vertical axis installed into the opening made in the plate centre. On the plate it is rigidly fixed a central position with a opening in the lower part, by that its width exceeds the rotative plate diameter. The game boards are situated on the rotative plate.

The result of the invention consists in the possibility of rotation of the game boards relatively to the players.