

98-0135

The invention relates to medicine, particularly, to the gynecology and may be used for the treatment of the woman sterility caused by female genitals inflammatory diseases.

Summary of the invention consists in the paracervical administration of the mononuclear cells culture suspension prepared of the recipient's blood and in the intrauterine administration of the supernatant obtained at the isolation of the mononuclear cells culture from the suspension.

The technical result consists in improvement of the immune reactions, inflammatory reaction inhibition and commisures resolving.

Claims: 1