

98-0136

The invention relate to medicine, particularly, to the gynecology and may be used for the treatment of the female genitals inflammatory diseases.

The method according to the invention consists in the paracervical administration of the mononuclear cells culture suspension prepared of the recipient's blood.

The technical result consists in improvement of the immune reactions and inflammatory reaction inhibiting

Claims: 1