

99-0159

The invention refers to medicine, in particular, to the clinical immunology and gastroenterology.

Summary of the invention consists in, that there are determined parameters of the lymphocytes B receptors association, it is revealed cells percent quantity which form small aggregates and cells in the capping stage, there are compared the obtained values and in case of the small aggregates forming cells one prognosticates the duodenum ulcer recidivation.

The result of the invention consists in determining the indice reflecting the possibility of duodenum ulcer recidivation development.