

99-0206

The invention refers to medicine, in particular to orthopedics, namely to the treatment of the children's diaphyseal affections.

Summary of the invention consists in, that section of the shin soft tissues is carried out on the lateral side thereof, thereafter it is realized the peroneal bone mobilization, there are made through holes into the cortical layer around the peroneal bone part and it is cut out through the obtained holes. Thereafter the wound is sutured.