

The invention refers to medicine, in particular to radiology, neurology and neuroorthopedics. Summary of the invention consists in carrying out the profile radiogram of the skull, onto which it is determined the individual angle, formed by the intersection of the line, traced along the clivus, and of the line, joining the inferior edge of the eye socket and the ear canal. Afterwards, it is administered the radiopharmaceutical preparation, the patient is positioned in dorsal decubitus and there are carried out the scintigraphic examinations.