

a 2000 0182

The invention relates to devices for entertainment, particularly to entertaining table games, and may be used for entertaining and sporting purposes, in holiday-camps, sanatoria, for active rest at home.

Summary of the invention consists in that the table game includes a table with playing-field onto which there are executed markings, with borders installed on its edges, playing balls, arbitrary placed on the field, and cue. The novelty consists in that in the centre of the borders on the smaller sides of the playing-field there are executed openings, into which there are installed goals, containing vertical bars fixed into the opening line, joined with the horizontal bar of the goal, a protective screen fixed to the bars and a platform bounded by them, the level of which being below the playing-field level. On the goals line between the vertical bars into the platform it is made a slot, into which it is placed the vertical part of an L-shaped protective plate, mounted with the possibility of displacing along the goals line, and its horizontal part, provided with handle, is placed under the platform.

The result consists in increasing the entertaining character of the game, in increasing the number of playing variants, in the possibility of realizing a team-game.