

The invention refers to medicine, in particular to ophthalmology.

Summary of the invention consists in that application of laser irradiation is carried out directly on the residual proliferative elements of the cataract with an energy of 0,3...0,5 mJ and pulse duration of 0,1 s.