

a 2004 0169

The invention refers to agriculture and may be used in the plant growing for treatment of cucumber seeds after their long-term storage.

The process for treating cucumber seeds with reduced viability includes treatment of seeds within 24 hours with 0,01...0,05% aqueous solution of the extract of steroid glycosides from egg-plant roots.

The result consists in increasing the viability of the cucumber seeds.

Claims: 1