

a 2007 0039

The invention refers to medicine, namely to orthopedics and is meant for treatment of clavicle acromial extremity dislocations.

The fixator for treating the clavicle acromial extremity dislocations is made of wire of a material with form memory and consists of two rectilinear portions joined by an elastic connection of arched shape, at the same time the end of one portion is curved in horizontal plane and the end of the opposite portion is curved in vertical plane.

Claims: 1

Fig.: 1