

a 2007 0302

The invention refers to medicine, in particular to pharmacology and gynecology.

Summary of the invention consists in using diethyl phosphate of S-ethylisothiuronium as uteronic preparation for treating uterine hemorrhages in case of hystero-myoma.

The result of the invention consists in that at local use of the given medicinal preparation in 88% cases it is obtained a complete hemostasis in a short time interval and without side effects.

Claims: 1