

a 2008 0075

The invention refers to medicine, in particular to pharmacology and gynecology.

Summary of the invention consists in using diethyl phosphate-S-ethyl isothiuronium as analgesic preparation for treatment of primary and secondary algodismenorrhea.

The result of the invention consists in that at the local use of the given medicinal preparation in the form of suppository in 95...100% of cases it is attained disappearance of the pain syndrome after the second applied suppository.

Claims: 2