

a 2001 0020

The invention relates to medicine, in particular to the medicinal equipment used for treatment of vertebral column affections.

Summary of the invention consists in that the device includes a metallic frame with bearing bar, dynamometers and fixing belts. Additionally, the device includes a jack with metal arc, a movable support for the back, provided with a screw for modelling the bar bending, a fixed support for the patient pelvis and the Glison's loop.

The result of the invention consists in attenuation of the algescic and radicular syndrome, rehabilitation of patents with vertebral column affections.