

The invention refers to medicine, in particular to substances containing organic components, possessing adsorbing activity, which may be used in medicine for rendering of first aid in different intoxications and in the complex treatment of certain diseases.

It is claimed an adsorbent carboniferous substance from grapestones, activated with phosphorous acid, in the form of particles, with the dispersion degree of 0,3...1,5 mm and the overall pore volume of 0,45...0,90 cm<sup>3</sup>/g.

Claims: 1