

a 2007 0322

The invention relates to methods for applying tags on documents on paper carrier.

The method for applying the tag consists in that the identification element is introduced into the liquid paper mass in the form of superdispersed powder of composite material in the mixing process during the paper production, afterwards placement of the superdispersed powder inclusions is fixed on an information network, mainly close to other identification elements.

Claims: 4