

The invention relates to medicine, namely to radiotherapeutic treatment in oncology.

Summary of invention consists in the fact that once a day, immediately after meals, during 15 days from the start of the course of radiotherapy, is intramuscularly administered 5 ml of 5% solution of ascorbic acid and perorally one capsule (33000 IU) of retinol, one capsule (0.2 g) of tocopherol and one tablet (0.2 g) of methyluracil. At the same time, starting 2...3 days prior to the start of the course of radiotherapy, as well as along its entire length, is perorally administered a mixture of grape seed oil and pumpkin seed oil, in a ratio of 1:1, one tablespoon (15 ml) twice a day, concomitantly is applied the mixture of oils on the skin in the region subjected to irradiation.

The result consists in diminishing the local and general postradiation complications in oncologic patients.

Claims: 1