

s 2019 0069

The invention relates to medicine, in particular to endoscopic hemostasis of hemorrhages from esophageal-gastric varices in liver cirrhosis.

Summary of the invention consists in that is endoscopically injected into the varix lumen 0.5...1.0 g of a ceftriaxone solution, dissolved in 5.0...10.0 ml of a 2% lidocaine solution, then are simultaneously introduced the components of a fibrin adhesive, namely the first component includes a fibrinogen solution, and the second component includes a mixture of aprotinin, thrombin and calcium chloride solutions, in the following ratio of components in 1 ml:

fibrinogen (mg)	15...30
aprotinin (KIU)	250...1000
thrombin (IU)	25...100
calcium chloride (μmol)	15...30.

Claims: 1