

s 2020 0048

The invention relates to medicine, in particular to ophthalmology, and can be used for drug treatment of noninfectious ocular inflammations.

Summary of the invention consists in that an antibiotic of the fluoroquinolone class, a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug and a corticosteroid drug are administered in the form of eye drops, which are administered for 7 days, concomitantly an antibiotic of the third-generation cephalosporin class is administered systemically, for 7 days, a corticosteroid drug, for 5 days, and an antifungal drug, a triazole derivative, on the first day of treatment, concomitantly, a bevacizumab solution 1.25 mg/0.05 mL is administered into the anterior chamber of eye on the first day of treatment after performing local anesthesia with 0.5% tetracaine solution or 2% lidocaine solution.

Claims: 1