

s 2022 0060

The invention relates to the alcohol industry, in particular to the production of aged alcoholic products, namely to a method for maturation of alcoholic distillate.

The method, according to the invention, provides for the preliminary enrichment of the young distillate with extractive substances of oak wood, subsequent maturation of the distillate in the presence of crushed oak wood, periodically suspended in the volume of the distillate, periodic mixing and oxygenation of the distillate, at the same time, oxygenation is carried out by introducing gaseous oxygen in an amount that ensures partial flotation of the crushed oak wood on the surface of the distillate.

Claims: 3