The utility model refers to the food industry, in particular to packages for bottling of liquid products

The package includes a vessel of plastic material with neck, fixed by sticking or with the help of some fixing arms into a cardboard box, repeating the form of the vessel. In the upper part of the box there is made a hole through which passes the vessel neck. The vessel is corked up with a cork or with a screwed on cap. The package is provided with a handle, fixed to the cardboard box or to the vessel neck by means of a ring.
